

Andrew Bowerbank - Speaker Overview

About Andrew

Andrew Bowerbank is a nationally recognized innovation strategist and city-building leader whose career spans executive roles in design+engineering, construction, property development, and clean energy systems. He is known for helping organizations anticipate industry trends, develop bold strategies, and seize emerging opportunities in rapidly changing markets.

Andrew has shaped market leading strategies across Canada, including the development of next-generation ICI buildings, sustainable communities, advanced technologies, and manufacturing systems that are redefining how cities grow. His leadership roles at EllisDon, WSP, Enbridge Gas, Magna International, and the World Green Building Council (to name just a few) have positioned him at the intersection of innovation, business strategy, and large-scale project delivery.

He is celebrated for transforming complex ideas into clear strategies that resonate with executives, policymakers, and industry professionals. Andrew has received awards for his public speaking, and national honours, including Canada's Clean50 Award, the prestigious Ontario Premier's Award, and CEO of the Year by CEO Monthly magazine.
